

Allison Mahaley

Allison is an instructor, facilitator, and educational designer with a passion and commitment to social justice work. In recent years, she has parlayed her experience in the public sector where she taught students, mentored teachers, presented at conferences, and has worked as an advocate for parents and students at all levels into the delivery of Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion content for corporations and nonprofits as more and more spaces awaken to injustices.

Allison is also a community organizer committed to dismantling racism and other systems of oppression through open dialogue and peace-building measures.

She offers workshops and consulting about personal empowerment, allyship, and organizational effectiveness through healthy organizational culture.

